

NEW YELLOW "MUM."

Very Promising Sport of Popular Timothy Eaton.

Another valuable addition to the Eaton family of chrysanthemums has departed from the rather coarse form of the Eaton and developed into a beautiful and refined flower. A writer in Gardening, in which this new sport is illustrated, says it originated with John A. Macrae of Rhode Island in the fall of 1904. In a bunch of yellow Eatons one flower appearing entirely distinct in color and form was left to fully develop after the others had been cut. This it did two or three weeks later. The color is much deeper than that of the parent and at stages of the flower's development equals that of the Appleton. The form is the Bonnafton type, but the petals are more closely folded. The bloom is about the same color when completely developed. The petals are more pointed than those of the Bonnafton, deeply cupped, highly arched, beautifully incurved and exceedingly double in the center. The new flower's growth is equal in every respect to the parental except that it seems shorter jointed. It shows no tendency to revert, and its keeping qualities are unequalled, the original flower having been kept four weeks.

The first flowers of the new plant were cut Nov. 25, 1905, and shown on that date before the chrysanthemum committee in Boston, where it scored 90 points. An attempt will be made to have stock in readiness for the exhibitions of 1906.

TRIMMING TREES.

How and When to Handle Various Fruit Bearers.

Cherry trees after the first few years and when the head is formed need practically no pruning. Simply cut out dead or crossed limbs.

Peach trees need much trimming. Cut back at least one-half of the new growth each season and thin out the center of head.

Apples, pears, plums and quinces require moderate pruning each year.

Avoid cutting off large limbs, if possible. Cover all wounds with thick paint.

Broad, low down trees are easier to spray, thin, pick and trim. Cut out those high tops!

Compact, low trees suffer less from storms.

"Prune in June for fruitfulness, in the spring for wood." This is a wise old saw. But most farmers are too busy with other work in June; consequently the larger proportion of orchardists do their pruning in February or March. But there is great merit in June pruning.—Farm Journal.

Easter Flowering Shrubs.

The beautiful Deutzia lemoinei, a hybrid between the ever popular D. gracilis and D. crenata, is well worthy of a place in the list of desirable Easter flowering shrubs. The deutzias are hardy and should be left outside until about eight weeks before Easter, that giving sufficient time in which to flower them properly. They should be started at a temperature of 50 degrees and afterward advanced to 60 degrees, beyond which they should never be allowed to go. A higher temperature than this for even a single day will spoil them.—Gardening.

Forcing Twigs in Water.

From Feb. 15 to March 10 is the time to bring in twigs of flowering shrubs and trees and put them in a vase of water in a sunny window sill, where they will open during the dreariest month of the year—the month before spring comes. Among the showiest and most interesting are the flowering dogwood, forsythia, apple, peach, pear, red maple, elm, beech and horse chestnut. Magnolias have the largest flowers of all, but it is doubtful if any one has succeeded with them. Change the water every day or two.—Garden Magazine.

Pruning Dewberries.

The most common way of managing dewberry plants is to drive a stake three or four feet high between two hills and tie the young canes from each hill to the top of the stake, cutting their loose ends back to about one foot above the stake. The fruit is then borne above the new growth, kept clean and can be easily picked. The young canes are allowed to run over the ground at will during the growing season and the next year are tied to the top of the stake, while the old fruiting ones are cut away.—Rural New Yorker.
